

Saved through Foster Care: One Woman's Touching Life Struggle Raises Awareness and Inspires Hope

New three generational memoir exposes one woman's life in a mission to show how foster care can change the lives of children who have fallen through the cracks.

Mount Vernon, Ohio, (April 30, 2010) – In On the Edge of Unthinkable, author Paula Kyle's main focus is to help give hope to troubled and lost children navigating through Child Protective Services. Pattie Ruble, a retired clinical social worker said, "I appreciate her honesty and the resulting affirmation that it really is possible to change the lives of these children... I recommend it for anyone interested in children's issues." The details and knowledge contained in this book will give readers the will to survive and overcome any obstacle or crisis faced in life.

On the Edge of Unthinkable chronicles the life of author Paula Kyle, beginning in 1974 when Kyle and her two sisters were abruptly taken from their family and left in three separate foster care homes. It explains the circumstances leading up to Kyle's and her sisters' removal from their father, the abuse her twin sisters experienced being left behind, Kyle's navigation through 7 different foster homes, and explores the ramifications this childhood had on her adult life. With additional insights from Kyle's foster dad, siblings, and even daughter, Paula Kyle clearly demonstrates her courage and drive to show how the foster care system saved her life.

This book is especially intended for anyone who has had to maneuver through the vast complexities of the foster care world. Jeanette Pelton, Professor of Social Work and Child Therapist has said, "She reminds us that the human spirit is not easily quenched, that one kind word can give hope needed for a child's survival, and she holds all of us accountable for how we look at and treat our children... I would highly recommend this book to people interested in becoming foster parents, to college students who are studying social work and to parents -sometimes we don't know what we do to those we love."

This book gives its readers the courage and strength to heal from any heartache or tragedy. You will find the book sold on Amazon and Barnes&Noble.com.

Contact Information:

Lisa Winn

1-800-614-3578

lisa@eckohousepublishing.com

www.edgeofunthinkable.com

ECKO House Publishing

Monday to Friday 10:00a.m. to 5:00p.m. MST

Fax: 801-994-1091

P.O. Box 901930

Sandy, UT 84092

info@ECKOHousePublishing.com

1-800-614-3578

www.ECKOHousePublishing.com